

SPECIAL ISSUE — Genealogical Magazine of New Jersey (GMNJ), Vol. 89, No. 4 (December 2014)

Understanding New Jersey's Geography in the Proprietary Period

In celebration of New Jersey's 350th "birthday," the Genealogical Society of New Jersey (GSNJ) is proud to make available this Special Issue of GMNJ focused on New Jersey's proprietary period, circa 1664–1703.

For those interested in early New Jersey genealogical research, understanding the state's ever-shifting boundaries is vital to finding your ancestors and locating their records. This special issue traces the history and evolution of these borders, explains why they were so often in flux, and offers context to understanding early methods of land conveyances and deeds.

The author, Joseph R. Klett, is Executive Director of the New Jersey State Archives, GSNJ Trustee, and an expert on early land records. This special issue is illustrated with maps and artifacts, and culminates with a mini-gazetteer, titled "a basic guide to the jurisdictional subdivisions."

"Joe has given us the clearest and most succinct history of the proprietary period yet written, with the best source information anyone could possibly want, coming from the authority on sources."
